may return to Tampico and attempt to bottle up that port.
What the attitude of the United States would be toward such a blockade also is unsettled. It might be ignored on the ground that this government has refused to recognize Huerta. Admiral Howard, on the Pacific Coast, already has taken action of a somewhat similar character. He reported yesterday that he had ignored Huerta's refusal to clear an American vessel carrying refugees and had taken it upon himself to see that the vessel succeeded in clearing the Mexican port.

Skies are Clearing.

Two developments yesterday helped to clear the situation. Word was received from Huerta through the mediators that the explanation by the United States of the seizure of Lobos Island was satisfactory and that the incident was closed. Huerta informed the United States that the Mexican lighthouse keeper would return to Lobos Island and maintain the lights. The United States already has expressed its willingness to retire from the island in the event of this assurance from Huerta.

From Vera Cruz. also, the information was received that the five snipers who were supposed to be South Americans really were Mexican subjects. They have been released. This also eliminates a possible complication to the mediation program.

Washington is not alarmed over the sports that Zapata, with his army, is now within ten or twelve miles of Mexinow within ten or twelve miles of Mexico City. They are, of course, concerned over the prospect of looting and a temporary crisis through an attack by Zapata on the capital, but they do not figure that he will be a serious obstacle in the settlement of the situation. It is pointed out that he has no artillery to speak of, and that if he once occupied the city his forces would be driven out quickly either by Villa or by the remnants of the federal army.
